Are you wondering: What is a Sanctuary City? Why are they “protecting” immigrants? What is the Administration doing to curtail their existence? How are the courts responding to “sanctuary cities” and the current Administration’s actions? If you’d like to know the answer to these very important questions, join us for a discussion on “sanctuary cities” and the “rule of law.”

Sturm College of Law

Professor Lasch is an expert in criminal and immigration law. His particular focus is on the constitutionality of “Sanctuary Cities” as well as state and local law enforcements’ compliance with immigration detainers. He has been instrumental in supporting litigation on these issues through amicus briefs on cases across the country, such as Florez Rojas v. Suffolk Cnty. Sheriff’s Office, State of California v. Jefferson, El Cenizo, et. al. v. St. of Texas, Commonwealth v. Lunn in Massachusetts, and City of Chicago v. Sessions.
