2. Interview with prospective museum/gallery supervisor
3. Mid-point email check-in with program coordinator

Writing Assignments and Forms:
Internship Work plan
This is a form filled out jointly by the intern and the museum/gallery supervisor outlining the training to be received and the duties to be performed by the intern. It outlines the period of time the internship will cover and where the internship will occur. It is signed by the intern, museum supervisor and program coordinator with each receiving a copy. This form is completed prior to the beginning of the internship, turned in to the office so that that student can register for the class.

Daily Journal
The Daily Journal is a running diary of tasks and experiences the intern encounters in his/her internship on a daily basis. This document should be typed, not handwritten.

Intern Evaluation
This is a form completed by the museum/gallery supervisor. It is the student’s responsibility to give a copy of the form to the supervisor. The supervisor then sends it to the program coordinator at the conclusion of the internship.

Final Report
All students enrolled in Professional Museum Internship must write an "end of internship" report. This report is in addition to the daily journal kept for the duration of the internship. This final report should highlight internship activities and accomplishments and include recommendations for future interns. The student should refer to the Evaluation and Final Report Guide for use in preparing the written report.

To Museum Supervisor: This student is entrusted to you for meaningful training in the practices of museum work. He/she should be considered an apprentice, not a volunteer, and should be assigned tasks at a level of complexity that will allow him/her to learn about the range of work conducted in your department and how that work interfaces with other departments in the museum and relates to the museum’s overall mission. The student should be allowed to shadow you and attend planning meetings, as appropriate, in order to gain a fuller understanding of day-to-day operations and the way in which museum staff members interact when working on various projects. Please list below the training and exposure to museum work you will provide:
